

The Great Learning

Gathuru Mburu

Gathuru Mburu is Founding Director of Institute for Culture and Ecology, and he also consults for African Biodiversity Network. He is promoting use of indigenous knowledge and African spirituality in environmental conservation in Kenya.

Dear Thomas Berry,
Every day I go to talk to people about their relationship with Earth, my mind goes to the good writings I have read done by you, and this inspires the discussions with my audience. I have also watched videos of your talks and they really inspire. The writings and talks appear like stories, but they have a spirit that speaks to people to see the essence of re-discovering their relationship with nature. This is because you speak and write them in spirit, and this is transmitted to the reader and listener in the same spirit. The greatest learning from your words has been doing the things I do in spirit, and they will be real!

Thank you so much for this great teaching and live on to inspire more.